Pioneers Barbecue Real Success Should Be Annual Event

The Ocean Beach Pioneers barbecue and celebration came to a most successful conclusion Saturday, June 30th, after about one month's preparation by local committees working together in a most harmonious manner.

The idea originated with Mrs. Winifred Davidson, historian and author, who presented the plan to the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce which body was pleased to sponsor the occasion and take the responsibility of the financial end of the event. The willing cooperation of the San Diego Historical Society, pioneer organizations of all types, as well as local patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations made the celebration of old times at Ocean Beach an affair long to be remembered, and the general wish of all those participating, was that is should by all means become an annual fiesta. Jimmy Murphy, experienced barbecue man, lent whole-hearted support. His part of the barbecue could not have been better prepared.

The many ctizens who took part have the sincere thanks of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce. Some of the workers spent the full week before the barbecue in planning and assisting in carrying out of the plans. The old street car used in parading bathing beauties of "then and now" was given by the San Diego Street Railway Co., who gave every consideration to making the celebration a success. This car decorated by Jean Rittenhouse and Mrs. C. W. Varney with a crowd of girls dressed and arranged by Mrs. Louise Eulberg was a colorful and interesting sight to the citizens of down town San Diego.

The assistance of the Ocean Beach Woman's club members, the use of their building and equipment and the help of Mrs. Albert Dumont of the playground department together with the civic center building and its equipment, tables and benches from city departments.

The decorated street car with the bathing beauties aboard left the beach at 12:15, going to San Diego and remaining there until 1:45, when with Merkley's band they left for Ocean Beach. On arrival here the band boys favored the gathering crowd with lively airs. Then followed a two hour program on the beach. In an old fashioned bathing beauty contest first prize went to Jeanette Russell of Ocean Beach and second prize to Jane Wainscott of Pacific Beach.

Preparations had been made for serving 500 to 600 at the barbecue and while the greater part of the crowd was served with a well filled plate of delicious barbecued beef, buttered bun, spaghetti a la Madigan, cold slaw, pie and coffee; there were some of the late comers who were taken care of by nearby restraurants.

Old Timers from 1860 to 1915 did a lot of visiting and renewing of acquaintances. The program after the barbecue was in charge of Frank B. McElwee with D. C. Collier as the main speaker. Collier owned a shack in the pioneer days at the foot of Santa Cruz avenue where Alligator Rock Lodge now stands. He was enthusiastic in the progress we have made since the time when he first came here and believed Ocean Beach has fared as well or better than many other places he has lived, in the intervening years.

The skit "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" by the Pacific Beach Woman's gym class was said to be an amusing part of the beach program. Chief Running Elk, Iriquois Indian, filled in the program during the afternoon and gave dance numbers at the street dance.

Barbecue Receipts Pay All Expense of Event

The Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce, who sponsored the Ocean Beach Pioneers barbecue Saturday, June 30th, is pleased to report that there was no deficit to be taken care of from the general fund of the Chamber of Commerce, but that a small surplus is still on hand and it is believed all bills have been paid.

Following is an accounting of cash received and paid out to July 2, 1934.

XXXVI

THE TURN OF THE CENTURY

Boom days were over and much of the bitterness engendered by burst bubbles, lost fortunes, hopes deferred dreams unrealized had been forgotten by the close of the 19th century. Ocean Beach was a name fixed upon California history, maps and subdivision plats. Streets that had been indicated existed scarcely more than within the imagination of the few who still believed that someday, somehow a citified community would spread itself upon this wide-turned gentle slope.

During the rainy season Ocean Beach presented a forlorn and depressing scene, more forlorn and more depressng because of the very fact that a few scattered shacks and remains of buildings, the debris left by a generation which had tried and failed to make a go of town building were scattered about here and there. The group which was marked by Captain Thomas's and General Crook's establishment about where Faber's grocery store (I understand) now has become a landmark, for those who try to recollect the appearance of the beach three decades ago, persisting as a nucleus for the future town. What was then the "center" of activity is today the prinicpal intersection at Ocean Beach. This in itself is an interesting fact: that haphazardly, or with carefully planned decision, the center of Ocean Beach in 1900 remains its center today in 1934.

Frank McElwee's statement about this center is as follows:

"There was an old windmill back of the place where the police station is. Capt Thomas dug this well and put in a pipe line from the well to his corrall on Newport, about where Faber's grocery is now. He had one old horse called 'Pick-up'. He took care of the horses of campers . . . When I came here in 1905 there was a group of four houses at the corner of what is now Bacon and Newport streets, the beginning of the business center of Ocean Beach."

Not much business, not much activity of any kind was to be observed at the oldest California picnicking beach during the rainy season, it appears; but — what a change of scene after the 15th of May each year! Summer for old Californians began with this date. After the middle of May it was safe to make adobes; therefore the time for meriendas had come.

At the turn of the century, as of old during the colorful Spanish and Mexican periods here, all available vehicles were in demand to bring hither campers for a day, two days, a week, a month, even for the whole summer season ending about the middle of October. Horseback riders were many; camp wagons were popular; and now and then an ox-drawn carreta might be seen.

It may be said that Ocean Beach was never without its "fans", those who preferred its advantages to other offered by beach, bay, mountain and valley; those who considered themselves summer residents, in spite of the ephemeral quality of the places they lived in, and who if conditions had permitted would have lived here the year around. And it is interesting to know that children of these early comers, that their children's children in fact, are among Ocean Beach's most consistent enthusiasts.

During the first decade of this century, life went on here much as it had during the last five years of the 19th century; and yet, though no one seemed aware of the fact, the great change had set in. The gathering of families had begun. The beginning of permanent settlement had been made. A certain distinctive Ocean Beach environment had begun to be recognized, and liked by an increasing number of the discerning.

REGULAR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING MONDAY, JULY 9

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce will be held Monday evening at the Ocean Beach Woman's clubhouse at 8 p. m.

All persons and especially business people of this section are requested to be present to help in planning improvements for Ocean Beach.

Southern California has made great progress in the last 30 years. Our section has seen its greatest advancement in the last ten years. Just think that as little as twenty years ago there was practically no school here, now our elementary school has an averagement enrollment of 550 and the junior-senior high school 1,000.

In the beginning we were confronted with many problems. No transportation, no water, no highways and no housing. All these things we now enjoy together with fine paved streets and walks. The problems have been solved mainly by the insistance of civic groups and the well directed growth can be attributed chiefly to the body known as the Chamber of Commerce. These commercial organizations show success in proportion to the support given them by the people of the community has more improvements in store. It is up to you to lend your moral and financial support to your Chamber of Commerce so that YOUR COMMUNITY can take full advantage of opportunities that are offered.

SPRECKELS GIFT TO MISSION BAY STATE PARK

Many citizens have inquired as to what property is included in that generous gift of the Spreckels Company to the State of California for inclusion in Mission Bay State park. Assemblyman George B. Bowers, who has actively participated in the negotiations with State Commissioner Hart of Carlsbad, describes the gift as follows:

"All the real estate, buildings and equipment occupied by the plunge and auditorium, the roller coaster and roller rink, the entire paved area between the Prado south of these structures, the subway to Bonita bay and street cars, with adjoining comfort stations and waiting rooms, and about 7,300 feet of beach from the amusement center north to the north edge of Mission Beach subdivision.

CHECK UP ON YOUR RIGHT TO VOTE AUGUST 28

Less than two weeks remain for re-registation by those who wish to cast a vote in the primaries August 28, and who at present need to qualify. The law insists on the closing of the rolls for the Great Register 40 days before an election.

If you did not vote at the last general election your name was automatically stricken from the roll; you will have to re-register to have your privilege restored.

You can register in Ocean Beach with R. Nagel, 4646 Del Monte avenue, until July 19. Do it today.

STATUS OF LOCAL STATE COLLEGE NEARS DECISION

The plan to change San Diego Teacher's College to a regional college of liberal art or a branch of the State University is now before the State Council of Educational Planning and Coordination, according to the Chairman, Will C. Wood, in a letter of June, to Assemblyman George B. Bowers, 78th district.

Wood wrote that the Committee hopes to find a plan agreeable to all concerned. He stated that both President Sproul of the University and State Superintendent Kersey had been asked for briefs, that President Sproul had filed his brief on June 2. Superintendent Kersey was unable to furnish requested information for the June meeting on account of his absence from the State, however, Chairman Wood assures that our local college will be discussed at the next meeting to be called as soon as Dr. Kersey can be present.

Fishing Pier Project Will Again Be Sought -- Under S.E.R.A.

Monday evening directors of Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce met in a short session and made plans for a conference Tuesday morning with City Manager Lockwood, asking him to present a program to the San Diego city council whereby San Diego could have a fishing and recreation pier built at Ocean Beach. The conference was held Tuesday morning as planned and the city manager said he would have the proposition in shape by the end of the week so that it could be taken into consideration by the council on Monday.

The fishing pier project will be pushed at this time under SERA work, it being fully believed by a number of influential men at this time, that if cooperation is given by city authorities there should be no trouble in getting the proposed pier started. It is learned a good deal of material is available. The main drawback will be a fund of $10,000 to $20,000 for skilled labor and supervision.

The committee so far has met with fullest cooperation from John L. Bacon of the SERA and Ed Hastings, county supervisor, both stating that personally, they are for the project and that it will be a fine attraction for all of San Diego county.

NEW PASTOR AT POINT LOMA M. E. CHURCH

James Hughes is the new pastor at Point Loma Methodist church, Ocean Beach, and will preach his first sermon here Sunday morning.

Rev. Hughes for several years was director of religious education of the First Methodist church at Santa Ana, following which he graduated from the University of Southern California.

Construction New School To Start At Once.

Further information than that contained in last week's issue of the Ocean Beach News regarding the new elementary school at Ocean Beach, is that the building's total cost will be $43,188, including auditorium.

Sixteen bids had been submitted and were given thorough study by the school board.

B. O. Larson, building contractor, was awarded the general contract for the new six-room unit and auditorium on a low bid of $36,039. L. R. Huffman, plumbing contractor, will instal the plumbing and heating at a cost of $7,149.

Architect William P. Lodge told the board his plans for the work had received official state approval, and that actual work could start very soon.

Several alternates were left open for bidders. Before the final awards were made the board decided to spend $1,300 for a central heating plant. This was included in Huffman's bid.

Other alternates which the board decided to install included termite treated lumber, electric ventilation for the auditorium, and a broadcasting system from the auditorium to the classrooms.

A $400 item for acoustic plaster was included in the award made to Larson, but the board decided this would be deductible if they ran out of money.

REVEREND HENRY BEDINGER AT TRINITY EPISCOPAL

For eight Sundays, beginning July 8th, the Reverend Henry Bedinger will celebrate the Holy Communion service at the Trinity Episcopal church. Father Bedinger is one of the most learned and noted men in the Episcopal church, and his being in Ocean Beach gives our citizens an opportunity to hear a most interesting speaker. Services will be at 8 a. m., with breakfast in the Parish house immediately afterward. An invitation is extended to those of all creeds.

SINCLAIR PICNIC SUNDAY

A picnic and rally of Upton Sinclair supporters will be held next Sunday, July 8th, at Mission Beach picnic pavilion.

Prominent speakers from Los Angeles and San Diego will explain the movement which is sweeping the state, to End Poverty In California.

Everyone is invited. Bring your lunch and stay all day.

Tugwell Confirmed by Senate Despite Bitter Attacks—Darrow Board Assails Johnson—President Roosevelt's Plans for Social Regeneration.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union.

REXFORD GUY TUGWELL'S appearance before the senate agriculture committee to be quizzed as to his fitness for the position of undersecretary of agriculture was rather farcical, even though it brought on heated encounters among the members of the committee. The senators aired their own views freely, but learned almost nothing concerning those of Mr. Tugwell. He did tell them he believed the Constitution was flexible enough to take care of any necessary economic changes; that he was opposed to the adoption of Soviet planning by America, and that he thought his experience on his father's farm and his research qualified him for the position to which the President had appointed him. Finally the committee reported the nomination favorably, the only two opposing votes being those of "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina and Henry D. Hatfield of West Virginia.

R. G. Tugwell

The action of the committee assured Tugwell's confirmation by the senate, but the debate on the floor was unexpectedly long and the attacks on Tugwell were outspoken. Senator Schall of Minnesota, for instance, said:

"Agriculture demands and already has experiment stations dealing in actual crops, live stock, and markets. It wants no 'bold experiments in collectivism' by a self-styled philosopher who functions like a three card monte sharp who jumps upon a box with three shells and a pea and who entertains the public with his cry, 'Now you see it and now you don't. Who is the next gent?'

"Tugwell's general denial, and his specific denials, in the light of his associates in the field of political writing, are absolutely worthless. They are an insult to an intelligent jury. He insults the United States senate in order to gain a high office from which he can preach 'collectivism' as a substitute for American institutions and the Constitution."

WHILE the delegates of the steel workers' unions were gathering in Pittsburgh to vote on the threatened strike, President Roosevelt and his advisers brought forward a plan for an emergency law designed to avert the walkout. It was admittedly a temporary expedient to give the President an effective agency for the consideration of industrial disputes arising during the life of the NRA.

Under the new bill's terms, boards selected by the President would be empowered to order and conduct an election, by a secret ballot, to determine "by what person or persons or organizations" employees may desire to be represented in negotiations under the collective bargaining features of the national recovery act.

The proposed boards also would have the authority to order production of pertinent documents and witnesses to give testimony under oath, and their orders would be enforceable by any United States court of competent jurisdiction, similar to like privileges enjoyed by the federal trade commission. Vested with authority to prescribe their own rules and regulations, the boards would be armed with a penalty clause in the new law, setting $1,000 fine or a year imprisonment, or both, for violation of their decrees.

IN ITS second report to the President the national recovery review board, headed by Clarence Darrow, loosed another blast at Administrator Johnson and in effect recommended his removal as head of the NRA. The board said Johnson had given the recovery program an un-American and dictatorial tinge that handicapped it in the war on depression; that he has arbitrarily decreed life and death for industries, and that by arbitrary modifications of codes he has helped big business concerns to oppress their smaller competitors.

"The rule of the military commander is totally unsuited to the genius, habits, traditions, or psychology of the American people, and wholly ineffectual in meeting the present national crisis," the board concluded.

The second Darrow report covered the retail dry goods, warehousing, lumber, cement, retail food, boot and shoe, electrical manufacturing, bedding, petroleum, coffee, plumbing fixture, embroidery, and lead pencil codes. Complaints against the warehousing, electrical manufacturing, and embroidery codes were dismissed as without foundation. But in the other codes the board claimed to find oppression of small businesses or consumers.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL sent to Great Britain another note concerning the war debt, bluntly refuting the arguments of the British government, saying it was up to the debtor to offer propositions in such cases, and intimating that an arrangement for part payment in goods might be possible. However, when June 15, the day for installments, came, Uncle Sam received only $166,538, which was the full sum due from Finland. The larger debtors all gave notice of default, and so did most of the others. Czechoslovakia suggested a readjustment to permit it to pay in goods and service.

In Berlin the Reichsbank declared a six-months moratorium on its foreign obligations, these including the Dawes and Young loans. No cash transfers will be made by the bank from July 1 to December 31, 1934.

SENATOR ARTHUR ROBINSON of Indiana, who was renominated by the Republicans, will be opposed at the polls next fall by Sherman Minton, the selection of the Democratic state convention. Mr. Minton, a World war veteran, is now public counselor for the public service commission of the state. His nomination was a victory for Governor McNutt over the faction led by R. Earl Peters, former state chairman.

IN THE Democratic run-off primary in Alabama, Former Gov. Bibb Graves won the nomination for governor and goes back to the executive office which he held from January, 1927, to January, 1931.

Judge James E. Horton, who presided in the second trial of Heywood Patterson, one of the nine negro defendants in the "Scottsboro case," and then set aside a jury verdict of death, ran more than 2,500 behind A. A. Griffith of Cullman. George Huddleston of Birmingham retained his seat as congressman from the Ninth district, but Congressman Miles C. Allgood of the Fifth district was beaten by Maj. Joe Starnes.

IMMEDIATE relief from distress and recovery of business prosperity fall far short of President Roosevelt's plans for regeneration of the nation. This was revealed in his special message to congress which told of the plans and recommendations he would submit to the next congress. He asked for no present legislation, but gave notice of the social experiments he proposes to begin next winter.

President Roosevelt

The message discussed the three factors of housing, land and resource planning and old age and unemployment insurance.

Expressing satisfaction over progress in relieving industry, agriculture, and unemployment, the President, asserting his right to chart social reforms, declared, "It is childish to speak of recovery first and reconstruction afterward."

Taking up the housing problem, he said millions of dollars had already been provided to improve living conditions, and voiced the hope that with passage of his housing program private capital would be stimulated to widen the scope of home building.

Discussing planned control of the land, he declared that hundreds of thousands of families now live "where there is no reasonable prospect of a living in the years to come."

Sounding the failure of the government thus far to create a "national policy" for the development of land and water resources, Mr. Roosevelt indicated his intention of providing such a policy, and for the transferring to new lands of "those people who cannot make a living in their present positions."

Outlining his views on providing security against unemployment and old age, Mr. Roosevelt said he was seeking a "sound means" which he could recommend to provide an immediate safeguard against these "hazards and vicissitudes of life."

WHEN President Roosevelt signed the tariff bargaining bill he acquired authority to negotiate reciprocal trade treaties without senate approval and to increase or decrease tariff rates by as much as 50 per cent in order to stimulate foreign commerce. This policy of swapping reductions, the government believes, will result in great benefit to our foreign trade, and at the same time will give adequate protection to industry. Already nearly thirty foreign nations are lined up, awaiting an opportunity to negotiate reciprocal treaties.

MAX BAER of California brought the world's heavyweight title back to America by soundly whipping Primo Carnera, the huge Italian, in New York. The fight was the most exciting one seen in this country for a long time. Scheduled for fifteen rounds, it ended in the eleventh when the referee declared a technical knockout and awarded the victory to Baer. Carnera was game to the end. Thirteen times he went to the canvas, yet he was advancing against the retreating Baer during the greater part of the contest. Carnera went into the ring weighing 263 pounds, and Baer tipped the scales at 210.

CONGRESS completed action on the communications bill and it was handed to the President for his signature. This new law puts an end to the federal radio commission and creates a new board of seven members known as the federal communications commission that not only takes over the duties of the radio board but also all control that has been exercised by the interstate commerce commission over telegraphic and telephonic communications.

As set forth in the law, its enactment is for the purpose of regulating interstate and foreign commerce in communication by wire and radio to make available, so far as possible, to all the people of the United States a rapid, efficient, nation-wide and world-wide wire and radio communication service with adequate facilities, at reasonable charges, for the purpose of national defense and for the purpose of securing a more effective execution of this policy by centralizing authority heretofore granted by law to several agencies; and by granting additional authority with respect to interstate and foreign commerce in wire and radio communication.

A significant new provision which the bill carries into law is the assertion of full control over all wire and radio communications by the government in case of war or "public peril." Under this section the President has authority to take over all wire and radio offices and stations with just compensation to persons entitled thereto.

LARGELY through the efforts of Norman Davis, American ambassador at large, the European statesmen at Geneva were persuaded to drop their quarreling and adopt a mild compromise resolution that prolonged the life of the disarmament conference. Great Britain and France agreed upon a plan, based on the return of Germany to the conference, and the aid of Italy was enlisted. It was arranged that Chancellor Hitler should go to Venice and that Premier Mussolini should fly to that city to confer with his fellow dictator, whom he had never met. Later Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, is expected to go to Rome for a talk with Mussolini in which the misunderstandings between their countries may be ironed out.

Premier Mussolini

Mussolini and Hitler were to discuss European policies generally, and, specifically, the German claims to full armament and the Austrian question, involving Nazi propaganda in the latter country.

This Anglo-French compromise was a diplomatic setback for Russia, but the Soviet republic countered with the announcement that it had been recognized by Czechoslovakia and Rumania. Recognition by Jugoslavia was expected to follow shortly. Maxim Litvinov's announcement was taken to mean that the Russians intend to go ahead with their policy of encircling Germany.

The recognition was effected by an exchange of letters between Litvinov and Dr. Edward Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, and Nicholas Titulescu, foreign minister of Rumania. After suggesting an early exchange of ministers, which will assure that relations between their countries "will always remain friendly and correct," each of these letters adds the phrase, "our peoples will collaborate in the future to maintain the peace of the world."

German papers agree a new chapter in relations between Soviet Russia and the powers of southeastern Europe has been opened. It is expected the next step probably will be the conclusion of a commercial agreement between the little entente and Moscow, one of the purposes being to minimize the effect of Soviet dumping of lumber and cereals in the entente nations. Nonaggressions and mutual assistance pacts are said to be in the background.

A committee of the disarmament conference had under consideration the matter of guarantees for any convention which may be agreed upon; but when the question was submitted to the Japanese delegate he said his government could not consent to guarantees without reservations. Thereupon the Russian delegate said the Soviet government would not accept any such agreement that was not signed by Japan.

EVEN the Democrats in congress are not boasting openly of their success in passing the bill for a census of the unemployed, and many of them voted against it or were absent when it came up for final passage. That it was designed mainly to give jobs for the faithful at the expense of the national treasury was clear, for the census takers are not to get their jobs until after the November congressional elections. Then they will receive $2 a day for a long period, obtaining answers to an elaborate questionnaire

DROUTH-STRICKEN regions of the Middle West were blessed with soaking rains, and hope was held out for forage crops and corn. The earlier crops, however, are ruined over most of the area. Secretary Wallace, after a trip through the "dry" states, described the drouth as a "tragedy" for the farmers who are suffering from its ravages, but a possible future "blessing for the country as a whole."

OLIN DUTRA, professional of a California country club, now wears the crown of open golf champion of the United States. He won the title by shooting a 293 for 72 holes.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

JENNY WREN'S BIG COUSIN

PETER RABBIT never will forget his surprise when Jenny Wren asked him one morning if he had seen anything of her big cousin. Peter hesitated. As a matter of fact he couldn't think of any big cousin of Jenny Wren. All the cousins Peter knew anything about were very near Jenny's own size.

Now Jenny Wren is one of the most impatient small persons in the world. "Well, well, well, Peter, have you lost your tongue?" she chattered, "Can't you answer a simple question without taking all day about it? Have you seen anything of my big cousin?"

"You needn't be so cross about it if I am slow," replied Peter. "I'm just trying to think who your big cousin is. I guess, to be quite honest, I don't know him."

"I Saw Him Only Yesterday on the Edge of the Old Pasture."

"Don't know him! Don't know him!" sputtered Jenny. "Of course you know him. You can't help but know him. I mean Brownie the Thrasher."

In his surprise, Peter fairly jumped right off the ground. "What's that?" he exclaimed. "Since when was Brownie the Thrasher related to the Wren family?"

"Ever since there have been any Wrens and Thrashers," retorted Jenny. "Brownie belongs to one branch of the family and I belong to another, and that makes him my second cousin. It certainly is surprising how little some folks know."

"But I have always supposed he belonged to the Thrush family," protested Peter. "He certainly looks like a Thrush."

"Looking like one doesn't make him one," snapped Jenny. "By this time you ought to have learned that you never can judge anybody just by looks. It always makes me provoked to hear Brownie called the Brown Thrush. There isn't a drop of Thrush blood in him. But you haven't answered my question yet, Peter Rabbit; I want to know if he's here yet."

"Yes," said Peter. "I saw him yesterday on the edge of the Old Pasture. He was fussing about in the bushes and on the ground and jerking that long tail of his up and down and sidewise as if he didn't know what to do with it. I've never seen anybody twitch his tail around the way he does."

Jenny Wren giggled. "That's just like him," said she. "It is because he thrashes his tail around so much that he is called the Thrasher. I suppose he was wearing his new spring suit."

"I don't know whether or not it was new, but it was mighty good looking," replied Peter. "I just love that beautiful reddish brown of his back, wings and tail, and it certainly does set off his white and buff waistcoat with its dark streaks and spots. You must admit that anyone seeing him dressed so like the Thrushes is to be excused for thinking him a Thrush."

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a poor woman and sell doughnuts for a living. I charge three cents apiece for the doughnuts. One man says he will buy a dozen doughnuts every day if I will take off one cent from the price of each doughnut, for the hole. I can't afford to sell them cheaper than three cents and would like him for a customer. What shall I do?

Sincerely,
OLIVE OYLE.

Answer—The next time you see him tell him you have decided to give him one cent for each hole when he returns the holes.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am in love with a young lady and I thought she loved me too. Last night I called at her house and her sister told me my girl was not at home. I happened to look on the rack in the hall and I saw my girl's hat hanging there, so I knew she was home. I never want to see her again. Am I right?

Sincerely,
BOB O. LINK.

Answer—You are acting silly. Because you saw her hat in the hall you say she must have been home. In that case, if you saw your girl's stockings in the wash you'd swear she was in the laundry.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My father told me that a "window" and a "widow" were just the same. How can that be?

Yours truly,
FRANK LEE SPEAKING.

Answer—Your father's advice is very good. He means that when you get near either of them, you want to look out.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A girl friend of mine was married yesterday and of course I went to the wedding. Some relatives brought their baby to the wedding and all during the ceremony the baby cried. It seemed to spoil the whole thing. I expect to be married very shortly and I want to know how I can keep the guests from bringing babies to the wedding. What shall I do?

Sincerely,
N. GAGED.

Answer—When you have your wedding invitations printed just have printed in one corner of the invitations—"No Babies Expected."

SOME GOOD DRINKS

WHEN the weather is either unseasonably hot or too cool we need, some days, a chilling, tinkling drink and the next a hot one. A delightful drink that will appeal to nearly all tastes is the following fruit drink:

Fruit Iced Tea.

Make one cup of strong tea, using two or three teaspoons of the tea to a cupful of boiling water. Let it stand five minutes to steep, then chill. Squeeze the juice of four lemons, three oranges and add enough sugar to sweeten. Chill with plenty of ice, add a half gallon of water and serve with thin slices of orange and lemon floating on the glass.

Ginger Ale Cream.

Serve ice cream in tall glasses, fill up with ginger ale.

Chocolate Ice Cream Soda.

Into a tumbler put a small cone of ice cream, pour over this two tablespoons of chocolate sirup and fill the glass with chilled soda water drawn from a syphon.

Mulled Cider.

Put one quart of sweet cider into a saucepan. Add one small stick of cinnamon broken into pieces, one-half teaspoon of whole allspice, six whole cloves and one small piece of ginger root. Bring to the boiling point, let boil three minutes. Skim and turn into a hot stone pitcher, serve hot in small steins. Hot gingerbread, snappy cheese mixed with rich cream, makes a palatable luncheon with a stein of cider.

Delicious Punch.

Prepare a sirup of one cup of sugar, one-half cup of water, cook until it spins a thread; pour the sirup over three beaten egg whites and add slowly to one quart of freshly made english breakfast tea infusion which has been chilled; add this mixture to one quart of lemon flavored ice cream and mix thoroughly; turn into a freezer and freeze to a mush. Serve from a punch bowl in tall thin glasses.

Ginger Ale Cobbler.

Fill soda water glasses half full of finely crushed ice, add one slice of pineapple (the small size), then fill with ginger ale. Serve at once.

AN AIRPLANE FLIES OVER

By ANNE CAMPBELL

FROM an airplane looking down
Over the recumbent town,
Slum and mansion, avenue,
Alley, boulevard and street,
Melt into an even view,
In a harmony complete.

All is equal from the skies.
God, whose home is Paradise,
Sees his people as do we;
Little folks with aims so high,
Gazing heavenward to see
A red airplane in the sky!

Ant Army at Work

There is a South American ant which proceeds to a cocoa plantation in army formation. Each insect stands on a leaf and slowly and carefully cuts out an almost perfect circle, and back against they march in procession, each with the circle of leaf over the head like an umbrella. Back to their home, the ants masticate the leaf pieces and place them in prepared beds. A peculiar fungus soon grows up in these gardens upon which the ants feed, seemingly their only food.

Dentistry for the Alligator

THIS dentist, Carl Link, would be out of luck if Pontchartrain Billy were to shut his mouth in the middle of his annual dental work. The one hundred and seventy-five-year-old patriarch of the Los Angeles Alligator farm has his valuable molars watched with more care than some humans and as a result will probably live to snap at more than one future generation of visitors.

Getting the Best From Rice

One of the Most Successful Methods Is That of the Chinese, Which Calls for More Water Than Is Generally Used in America.

Do you know how to cook rice? Of course. I mean cook it really well? Any one can put rice in water and get it soft enough to eat, but when you finish cooking it, is yours dry and flaky? In other words, are you making the most of it?

There really is no one best way to cook rice. I have had several different recipes a la Chinese given to me, always with the statement, "This is the only way to cook rice well." These recipes, however, differ greatly both in the amount of water which should be used and also the question as to whether rice should be boiled rapidly or slowly. I have been most successful with the Chinese method, which calls for twice as much water as rice, and which directs that the rice shall be boiled but ten minutes and then put over hot water for about 15 minutes. I find the tall top of a double boiler the most satisfactory utensil.

This method, by the way, is quite different from that advised by a Chinese cook book which has recently been published. It suggests soaking the rice over night, then draining it and cooking it in boiling water for 20 minutes. Let me quote one sentence from the book, which gives an idea of the many ways in which rice may be prepared: "In China we have three religions, but a hundred dishes we may make from rice." Here is another quotation which might be applied to rice cookery: "Fuel may be cheap, but you need not burn the bottom of your pot."

To get back from China to America. There are two other ways which I like very much for cooking rice. One is to put in what is known as a rice ball—which looks like two sieves put together. The ball is put in a kettle of boiling water and when the rice is tender it may be lifted out and drained at the same time. The other method I like is what is known as steaming. I use three times as much milk as rice and put them together in a double boiler with a little salt, which we always add in whatever method we use. It takes about three-quarters of an hour to steam rice.

After the rice is cooked you can do all sorts of things with it besides serving it with meat as is so often done. I usually try to have gravy when I serve rice instead of potatoes. It can be combined with highly flavored foods, such as tomatoes, onion, cheese, leftover meat and fish.

It also forms a foundation for any number of interesting desserts. Steamed in milk, it is delicious with shaved maple sugar and crushed sweetened berries or fruit. If you want a more elaborate dessert you may add whipped cream, fruit, plus a little gelatin, to the rice, and mold it.

You may use brown rice or wild rice in place of the familiar white variety. The method of cooking is the same for all but both the brown and wild types require longer cooking time. These types of rice are especially good with meat and game.

Chinese Method of Cooking Rice.

1 cup rice
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups cold water

Add rice and salt to the water, cover and bring to a boil in top part of double boiler. Let boil ten minutes. By that time the water should be absorbed. Then set the top part of the double boiler over hot water 10 to 15 minutes. Remove the cover a few minutes before serving, to let out steam.

Swiss Rice.

1 cup rice
3 to 3½ cups hot milk
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup cream, whipped
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup drained shredded pineapple or other fruit

Add salt to milk. Steam rice in milk over boiling water 30 to 45 minutes until tender. Cool. Add vanilla, fold in half of whipped cream, add fruit and pour into pudding dish. Chill and garnish with remaining whipped cream.

Rice With Tomatoes and Ham.

1 onion
2 cups cooked ham
2 cups boiled rice
2 cups cooked tomatoes
Salt
Paprika
¾ cup buttered crumbs

Chop onion and ham very fine. Add rice and tomatoes seasoned with salt and paprika. Mix thoroughly, put in a baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake for 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees F.).

THE POWERS THAT BE

Not long since, the government decided to diminish the food production, wheat in particular; then while man thought he had his plan working, Nature gave a cogent example of destruction by drought, which shows that Mother Nature is governed by a power higher than mortals. When it comes to regulating by curtailment of crops, paying money for letting land lay dormant, the wisest and better course is to make a judicious distribution of food surpluses into sections of scarcity. Prosperity lies not in retarding the generous flow of useful things, but in correcting the defects in their distribution. The dry weather deteriorated winter wheat, prevented germination of late spring wheat and retarded corn planting. Farmers' wells and streams ran dry and feed supplies dwindled. Plagues of grasshoppers and chinch bugs appeared. This is the calamity in the drought-stricken states. The Federal Government must come to the rescue, which it is planning to do.

To say that Old Man Depression has hard hit most of the middle-west farmers is very evident. Great social and industrial unrest is feared in the east during the coming year due to the high prices for foods resulting from the scarcity of the very articles the Government has been destroying in the past year at the taxpayer's expense. This is a pitiable circumstance; in fact, it is serious enough to cause alarm. Altho rain came to the farmer's relief, it was too late to save the day for them, and now it is believed the outside world does not even know the conditions that exist. Thousands of farm families must be moved from the drought area and over a million head of cattle must be killed or brought by the government and destroyed.

If pleasant scenery and the unnumbered wonders of nature have any appeal to the artistic eye, you need not drive far in California for an eyeful feast. The perspective of anyone depends upon a cheery environment with a receptive mood to drink at the fountain of the ideal. Environment is like a looking glass; we can be happy under glad surroundings. There is that picture of endurance in the presence of a magnificent mountain view. It is such influences as these with abundance of out-door recreation and a frequent change of surroundings that are proclaimed the first necessities of robust health of body and mind. Nothing could have benefitted those men more who numbered into the hundreds of thousands, with only a dollar per day, for the environment was worth double what they actually earned in wages

Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes recently gave advice urging better laws and lawyers to rout crime. He touched a responsive chord in the breast of honest and aggressive citizenship; he also enumerates the responsibilities of lawyers to society. The lawyer in general is sort of looked upon as a necessary evil. While he is not a public officer in the constitutional or statutory sense of the term, he is an officer of the court, and as such owes a definite obligation to the public. His license to engage in the practice of the law is his, not of right, but as a privilege granted him by the state and his conduct must support and create confidence in the public mind in the administration of justice. It is a great honor for any lawyer when he exemplifies the principles and ideals of constitutional right and equality.

One of the richest investments "Uncle Sam" ever made was the purchase of Alaska, 67 years ago; for since that time we have received in return over two billion and a half dollars in gold, and recent reports are that still greater gold mining opportunities are opening up. In fact it might be termed as another gold rush, while hundreds with tools and supplies are gravitating to the north-land by airplane, hiking and by steamer. The gold-mining industry is one occupation that holds the same reward for the yellow product, $35 an ounce. When United States purchased Alaska for $7,200,000, bankers and business leaders laughed and said we were "stung"; but it is one of the best insular investments we ever made, and its valuable mining interests are showing richer returns every day.

While the state of California is facing a deficit of over thirty million dollars, the danger of insolvency is not a favorable picture to present, but an awful good campaign argument for a gubernatorial election campaign. California is a large, aggressive state with huge financial obligations coming up, but from the few short years since the state boasted of almost that same amount in its treasury, it points to tremendous extravagance and lavish expenditure. The taxpayer knows full well that he is in for it. The only dictator this country need fear is the tax collector. Taxes may become a tyrant, instead of the servant of the common good. The power to tax is still the power to destroy, as one has wisely said, "taxation is a challenge to statesmanship in every layer of government".

* * * *

Since the price of gold has been fixed at $35 per ounce a mixture of jewelry and other articles of the yellow metal have been flowing into the melting pot to be made over into useful money. Old spectacle rims, gold medals, wedding rings, gold chains and old watch cases and dental scraps make up the variety of trinkets. Thousands of dollars are hoarded away in old trophies and keepsakes like this but when the U. S. Treasury raised the price from $20.67, an increase of $14.33, it created a new market, especially when the minimum was lowered from five ounces to one ounce of the precious metal.

Statistics prove that 41 percent of the country's wealth is controlled by women. This shows a ratio of tax levy of three and a half billion dollars against four and three-quarter billions for men. This is a surprising fact, and while women are rapidly rising to high offices in state and Federal affairs, they are likewise becoming a financial power. It is also demonstrated that women are the majority stockholders in some of the country's largest corporations. The increased wealth of women has been more noticeable since she was given her suffrage at the ballot box.

NEW POLICY ANNOUNCED BY ORPHEUM THEATRE

Bringing to San Diego the greatest entertainment value offered in recent years, Harry L. Hartman, has announced a new policy for the Orpheum Theatre, Fifth avenue at B street, starting with the matinee performance yesterday.

Fulfilling the promise he made to San Diegians when he opened this theatre a few weeks ago; that he would offer more entertainment than could be obtained in any other theatre in the county for the money, Mr. Hartman has arranged a splendidly balanced program of six acts of vaudeville with Ted Mack as master of ceremonies and two major feature screen productions. The entire show will be presented at no advance in admission prices.

Starting with Thursday's offering, also ,it was announced, the theatre will change it's entire program twice weekly, Thursday and Sunday.

Coming to San Diego, unheralded and unsung; Ted Mack, director of the Orpheum band, has consistently gained in popularity with all San Diego theatre-goers for the capable way in which he has handled the stage productions. He has been retained for an extended engagement.

On the screen, starting Thursday, July 12 Columbia Studio presents the film version of Rian James's novel "The Loudspeaker", a comical story of Whinchell-like columnist, starring Ray Walker, Jacqueline Wells and Charles Grapewin. The second feature has not been selected as yet, but the management assures their patrons that it will be a first run major studio feature with a prominent cast of favorite stars.

CHADWICK FOLLOWS SCANT CLUES—GETS MURDERER

In this and the following series of articles, publication will be made for the first time of the inside story of some of San Diego's most notorious crimes, told by the officer who investigated and solved them. This man, Richard W. Chadwick, was for more than twenty years a member of the San Diego police department and later a member of the State narcotic department. Going back in his personal files in preparing his campaign for the office of sheriff, Mr. Chadwick found some photographs and other data reminding him of cases now almost forgotten but which were most notorious at the time of their commission and solution.

How many of us still retain even a faint recollection of the famous "Flash Case"? Accidently discovered by a rancher in the Mission valley bottoms, the scantily clad body of a woman was uncovered from a shallow grave by police, led by Chadwick, early in the year 1920. Identification of the body was made difficult by the absence of nearly all clothing and the complete absence of jewelry or other articles and by the disfigurement of time. A small undergarment taken from the body and a short handeled shovel found in the brush some distance from the scene were the only clues available. No record or report of a missing person on file here or in adjacent cities seemed to even remotely fit the description of the body.

By carefully subjecting the undergarment to chemical solutions and washings a faint but unmistakable laundry mark was brought out under a powerfull glass and by the same means Chadwick was able to decipher the minute markings on the price tag on the short handeled shovel. With these he set to work. The laundry mark unfortunately was one used by laundries to designate transient customers and was very common. Figuring the approximate time which has elapsed since the woman's death and then allowing two months additional time in the past, Chadwick set about eliminating the more than one hundred families whose bundles had born this mark during that time. Gradually eliminating one here, one there, he dwindled the list down to three in a period of a month's time. Now he was ready to use the clue developed from the markings on the shovel. Here fortune was with him; in the third hardware store he visited he found a clerk who not only remembered selling such a shovel, but was able to give an excellent description of the buyer. A story about raising mushrooms under the house had impressed itself upon the clerk and he had remembered the teller. The description which he gave tallied closely with the male member of one of the families whose laundry bore the telltale mark. This man was in the navy and at the time was on duty with his ship at San Pedro, so waiting for the ship to return Chadwick watched his chance and when the man came ashore he was followed to his new abode. Then waiting until the suspect had departed Chadwick obtained from the clothesline a garment which sure enough bore the laundry mark he had hoped it would. Here was the link; now he was ready to make the arrest and with another officer he watched for the man's return and took him into custody together with a young girl who was with him. From here on the job was comparatively easy and after a short series of questionings Thomas Flash confessed to the murder of his wife by poison and admitted that he had buried her where the body was found. He was tried in our Superior Court and received a life sentence in the penitentiary.

Another article by Mr. Chadwick next week will tell about the famous San Diego car barn robbery. Be sure and read about the "Iron Duke" and the part he played.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"Are Theosophists Pagans?" was the subject of the forum lecture in the Temple of Peace last Sunday afternoon. Dr. Henry T. Edge presented the address and admitted that Theosophists were pagans in that they follow the teachings prevalent among the pagans of pre-Christian times, the teachings of the wisdom-religion, given in the mystery-schools of antiquity. "Christianity in its present form," said Dr. Edge, "does not give us adequate teachings about the universe, and about man. It gives no explanation as to how God governs the universe. There is a great gap between God and the universe, and that gap science has had to fill. Christianity teaches that man is inherently sinful, and is saved not by his own efforts, but by the intercession of an outside God. The pagans believed and taught that man is inherently divine, and can save himself by self-directed evolution."

Dr. de Purucker rose to answer a question as to the meaning of 'God'; and said in part: "Attempts to define God, so-called, have brought about the greater part of the human misery in the western world, the greater part of the cruelty of man towards man. The instant you define, you begin to set frontiers. That which we Theosophists call divinity is boundless, frontierless, ineffable, which means unutterable indefinable, non-understandable by our finite minds. What human mind, or heart, or imagination, can encompass that which is so utterly beyond all power and reach of human consciousness, that all we can say of it is—THAT? It is nameless; it is even beyond being, because it includes non-being. The only possible defining of it is silence."

Next Sunday, July 8, Mrs. Marjorie M. Tyberg will deliver a forum-lecture on "Why I am a Theosophist" in the Temple of Peace at 3 o'clock. All are welcome.

Lomaland School.

Some three hundred people crowded the rotunda to see the performance of Balder the Beautiful presented by the pupils of Lomaland school last Thursday evening. The happiness of the children, which was obvious in all they did, quite apart from the excellence of the dancing, singing and acting and the color effects produced, won enthusiastic acclaim from the audience. It is hoped that the support of the public on this occasion will make it possible for the school to give a second performance of any future dramatic work which the pupils may prepare.

BANK OF AMERICA DEPOSITS INCREASE $158,590,000 IN YEAR

Earnings of Bank of America N. T. & S. A. and Bank of America (California) for the first six months of 1934 totaling $5,214,000, covered dividend requirements for the entire year by a margin of more than $1,000,000 and continued the uptrend in profits wth a 17 percent gain over earnings for the first half of 1933.

After payment of two quarterly dividends aggregating $1,800,000, the amount of $1,542,000 was appropriated for reserves and $1,872,000 was added to undivided profits during the past six months, which increased this account to $17,048,000 on June 30.

The earnings were at the annual rate of $10,400,000 or 2½ times the annual dividend rate of $4,100,000 established when directors increased the quarterly disbursement in June.

The combined statement of condition of Bank of America N. T. & S. A. and Bank of America (California) as of June 30, 1934, shows total deposits of $926,004,000, an increase of $158,590,000 since June 30, 1933.

The statement shows total resources of $1,091,377,000, with total cash of $101,448,000 and with $438,234,000 invested in U. S. Government, State, County and Municipal Bonds and other securities. Market value of these securities is higher than the amount at which they are carried on the books of the bank, the report shows.

Hints for Homemakers
By Jane Rogers

If you have an unfinished attic, you can cut down fuel costs and hot weather discomfort by insulating it. Insulation board of wood fibre nailed over the joists minimizes the loss of heat through the roof in cold weather and, in summer, retards the passage of heat from the roof through the ceilings. Joists as a rule are set on sixteen-inch centers. Since the boards are forty-eight inches wide, they can be put on with very little sawing.

Science has discovered that light foods eaten before retiring promote restful sleep. The sleep of a group of children was improved 12 per cent by substituting for their ordinary suppers a light supper in which the main dish consisted of the familiar, easily digested corn flakes and milk.

HORSE SHOE TOURNAMENT STARTS TODAY

Ocean Beach horse shoe tossing fans will start in a tournament today, it is planned, that will culminate in the awarding the prizes for two divisions after the elimination contests have been held.

A local membership is being formed with a small monthly charge. Visitors will be allowed to participate without cost. New horseshoes are being purchased, more checkers and cards will also be obtained and a large new blackboard has been erected to keep a record of the games and players.

Banks Repaying Loans From R. F. C.

Although banks and trust companies have been the largest borrowers from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, they have exceeded all other classes of borrowers in the rapidity of their repayments. Since the inception of the R. F. C. in February, 1932, loans have been authorized by it to 7,080 banking institutions in the amount of $1,995,000,000. Of this sum $442,000,000 was not taken by the borrowers, the actual advances being $1,553,000,000.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife christens Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley, a Texan, settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water for irrigation. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, Forlorn Valley banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. He proposes to play Nate against Lorry, assuming that they are carrying on the old feud, in this way getting control of the key lands necessary to the project. Nate, however, has no intention of carrying on the feud. He tells Lorry that he and Owen Kershaw, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed. They became buddies, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. Babson, determined to secure Lorry's lake-site and Nate's dam-site makes legal application for the allocation of flood waters to the Forlorn Valley irrigation district, which he organizes.

Babson's face expressed a hypocritical concern. "That's much too bad, Henry," he replied. "I'm sorry about Rance. He was as hard as steel, but honest. You never had to guess where Rance Kershaw stood on any proposition." Secretly he could have given three long, raucous cheers.

"I suppose the girl will have to liquidate now," he continued after a moment's thought. "She can't carry on with that business alone, and the estate is badly embarrassed financially. I'll be hanged if I see, Henry, how this bank is going to carry the Kershaw estate along to take a chance on getting its money back."

"So I thought," Rookby answered. "By the way, Nate Tichenor's come back to Eden Valley."

Babson started as if bee-stung. "Rance Kershaw owed the Bar H a lot of money on chattel mortgage for cattle he bought in 1920. Henry, he must owe the Bar H three or four years' rent."

"Undoubtedly," Mr. Rookby opined. "Nate Tichenor's let that steer have all the rope he wanted; now that the estate is in so deep it can't climb out, he's come back to give the Kershaw clan the final clout that will finish it."

"I wouldn't be so sure about that, Mr. Babson." And Rookby went on to describe Rance Kershaw's death in front of the gate leading to the Bar H headquarters; the summoning by Lorry Kershaw of Nate Tichenor in that hour of stress; the kindly and neighborly action of Tichenor thereafter; the arrival of Rube Tenney to take over the job of riding boss on the Circle K; the apparent friendliness between Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, as faithfully reported by Miss Lizzie Bachman to all in Valley Center who would listen to her eager recital.

"Lizzie was only up there with Lorry Kershaw three days and Nate Tichenor gave her fifty dollars for it," Rookby went on. "What's more, he paid her in advance. And he gave Bud Seamon and Jake Bacheller ten dollars each for digging Rance's grave."

"Liberal, ain't he?" Babson commented. "Henry, this is the most h—l-cracking piece of news that's come out of Eden Valley since Taylor Hensley and Rance Kershaw had their ruckus. Just the same, I'm banking Nate Tichenor's no softy in business matters; he's half Hensley and a grouch don't die easy in that breed. The Hensleys always did want all of Eden Valley, and now that Nate Tichenor sees a bully chance to get it cheap, together with the Kershaw cattle, he'll grab it. Has Lorry Kershaw been in here to see me since her father died?"

"In yesterday. Told her you'd be back last night so maybe she'll call today."

"How is she? Pretty well busted up?"

"Pert as they make 'em."

"I'm not surprised. Nothing weak about the Kershaws. Well, Henry, we shall see that which we shall see."

Two days later Lorry Kershaw came into the bank. Babson led her at once into his private office (usually he occupied a desk in a fenced-off corner of the banking room) and, with many protestations of sympathy for the loss of her father and regret that his absence from Valley Center had militated against his attendance at the funeral, begged her to be seated and inform him in what manner he could be of service to her. To his amazement the girl looked him over coldly.

"You should be sorry for father's death," she shot at him. "You killed him."

"I? My dear Lorry, how can you say such a thing?"

"You wrote him a letter and he knew you were going to close in on him. You knew he had a weak heart—that—shocks were bad for him—yet you shocked him. You wanted to. You bought up our mortgage and called it and our notes. You're a two-gun man, aren't you?"

"My dear girl, permit me to explain. Your father's notes had been renewed four times; they were overdue and the interest was in default, and the superintendent of state banks had jumped me about them more than once. I forgot your father should be spared shocks. The law forces us to protect the money of our depositors."

"Granted. But you bought our mortgage. Why?"

"For an investment and to save it from falling into the hands of your enemy?"

"Nate Tichenor." This was fast thinking and Babson felt a thrill of pride in his cleverness.

Her dark flashing eyes bored into his soul. "I think you're a contemptible liar."

He paled with anger, but controlled himself. "You will, of course, understand why I do not argue with you, my dear. You are under a strain—overwrought. Now I will repeat a query I made you when you first entered this room. In what manner can I be of service to the daughter of my old friend and revered customer, Ranceford Kershaw?"

"You Killed Him."

"You say you bought the mortgage as an investment. If I pay up the overdue interest, will you renew it for five years at the same rate of interest?"

"The present mortgage is at 6 per cent. It was made when money wasn't quite so tight as at present. I'm sorry, but a renewal will cost you 8 yer cent. I'm getting that from others."

"Will you renew the unsecured notes and cut the interest on them to 8 per cent?"

"Perhaps. I'll have to have a statement of the financial condition of your father's estate first."

"The estate is land poor and cow poor and it hasn't any money. It's practically insolvent."

He threw up his hands and smiled wearily. "How like a woman to ask such favors in the face of such a statement," he sighed, then brightened suddenly. "However, we might strike a happy compromise. I was interested to note recently that your father made you a deed of gift to four thousand acres in the lower part of Eden Valley."

She nodded.

"I would be glad to entertain a proposition to buy that land from you, Miss Lorry. As agricultural land it is worthless, as grazing land it is very poor, but as a hunting and fishing preserve it is excellent. I know a man who would be willing to pay you a fair price for that land."

"How much?"

"Well, I'm pretty certain I can unload it on him at ten dollars an acre. I'll expect you to sell to me for nine, of course. I've got to have a profit."

"And if I agree to sell to you at that price, what?"

"That will enable you take up your father's unsecured notes and rehabilitate your credit at this bank. In return I'll renew your mortgage for three years."

"At 6 per cent?' she insisted.

"Can't possibly," he defended.

"Is that your final decision, Mr. Babson?"

"Absolutely. I dislike to appear harsh, but business is business . . . I if I permit sentiment to—"

"Please spare me your stereotyped and hypocritical maunderings," the girl interrupted angrily. "I'm not a fool and I see through you as if you were a window. Make out a satisfaction of mortgage, sign it before a notary public and give it to me. In return I will give you a bank cashier's check for the exact amount due. Hand me those unsecured notes, marked 'Paid,' and you shall have another bank cashier's check for the amount of them, with interest. There are the checks"—and she tossed them on the table before him.

He stared at them in frank amazement. "Why, where did you get all that money?" he demanded.

"That's none of your business, sir. You called upon my father to pay up in five days or stand suit. He's dead, but I'm obeying orders. Your bluff's called. Nobody has ever run a blazer on the Kershaw clan and got away with it. And you were trying to run a blazer, you know. Tried to scare me into selling you that land of mine."

He was desolated. "Do you mean to tell me you refuse the fine offer I have just made you?"

"I do. I'd rather give the land away than sell it to you."

He fled from her stormy presence and in about fifteen minutes Henry Rookby pussy-footed in and handed her the canceled evidence of her father's indebtedness.

Mr. Rookby's eyes were round with wonder and resentment as he watched her climb into her battered old car at the curb and roll out Valley Center boulevard in the direction of Gold Run. He knew she was going to the county seat to record the satisfaction of the mortgage.

"By George," he said to Babson, sycophantically, "that's certainly one salty damsel, eh, chief?"

"She's a devil, Henry—a she devil on wheels. She's all the wild Kershaws rolled into one—and I'm a star-spangled jackass without brains enough to pound sand in a hole."

At three o'clock he went home, suffering from a violent headache, due solely to futile rage. But he was not at all in danger of a nervous collapse now, for the fight was in the open at last and he drew a subtle comfort from that knowledge. He knew now where Lorry Kershaw had gotten all that money. Undoubtedly she had sold her land to that mysterious power company. Well, he was routed in the lower end of the Pan, but he would go to the attack again at the upper end of the Handle. And, despite the fact that his alternative proposition would save the district the cost of erecting a huge impounding dam, Babson would gladly have abandoned it, for it carried risks and almost the certainty of expensive lawsuits which might so delay surface irrigation in Forlorn Valley as to ruin him and the Bank of Valley Center, even though at the last the valley should win the fight.

CHAPTER VII

Nate Tichenor was at the Circle K headquarters when Lorry Kershaw came in that night from her trip to Gold Run.

"Welcome, stranger," she greeted him, as she drove up. "Come out and help me admire my new car."

He came and looked the new car over soberly. "Aren't you a little bit reckless and improvident for a girl in your financial fix?" he demanded gravely.

"You talk like Silas Babson," she retorted gaily.

"Well, I'm not objecting, Lorry, but I greatly fear this new car will be regarded by Babson as an extravagance; it's bound to hurt your credit."

"Nate, Silas Babson can take a jump into Eden Valley creek for all I care. I'm washed up with him and his bank."

"No!" he cried simulating amazement. "How come?"

"I've sold my four thousand acres below the main ranch of the Bar H for four hundred thousand dollars—cash! And I've cleaned up Babson and his little red brick bank and have a hundred thousand dollars working capital left."

"Then God's in his heaven and all's well with the world. But why did you sell your land and keep the impending deal a secret from me? Somebody wants to put a dam in the gorge and they needed your land for the reservoir. You know very well the Bar H owns the dam site; if we'd worked together we could both have sold, but now that they have your land they have a terrific advantage over me."

"But you're a low-flung rascal, Nate Tichenor, to suspect I'd leave you holding the sack. I told that man I wouldn't sell for a million dollars unless they secured your dam site first."

"I suspected the sort of girl you are, Lorry, but I wanted to make certain. Forgive my little deceit. I took the liberty of deciding to sell your land and naming the price to the Mountain Valley Power company. I would never have sold my dam site to that corporation until assured there would be no argument with you over the price of your land. Did Babson try to trade you out of your land today?"

She related to him in detail her interview with the banker.

"I should say you gave Babson a poke under the heart. How did he assimilate it?"

"As if his world was crashing about him. Perhaps I should not have attacked him with such ferocity, but I have a temper, Nate, and when a lying, scheming, hypocritical, cold-hearted snake like Silas Babson crosses my trail I like to shoot his head off."

Nate smiled approvingly. He liked the fire in her. Here was no wishy-washy, clinging vine of a girl, dependent, selfish, and sex-conscious. A man's woman with a code of conduct like unto that of a very gallant gentleman.

She laughed, walking round her new car and admiring it.

"A carload of smooth two-year-old steers, averaging ten hundred and fifty pounds, sold for seven cents in the Union stock yards in Los Angeles today," he announced. "Things are certainly looking up for old Rance Kershaw's girl."

She turned on him with shining eyes. "How did you get the news so quickly?"

"My valet has a portable radio."

"Your what?"

"My valet."

"Oh, Nate, I'm ashamed of you. A great, big, strong man like you, with all your heads and legs and arms and teeth! A valet! I know you had a chauffeur, which is bad enough, but you've kept the valet in hiding." Then she was suddenly tender. "Ah, Nate, you're a dear. I had thought Eden Valley would be unbearably lonely when dad left me, but it isn't."

"I had thought the same thing with respect to myself. It wasn't my plan to remain here more than a week—"

"But you're not going away so soon?"

"Why not? I've completed my business—all except renewing the lease on the Bar H to the Kershaw estate, its heirs and assigns. I suppose you desire to renew the lease?"

"Just because you know I have a hundred thousand dollars on hand you want thirty thousand of it." With this light banter she strove to hide the shock his announcement had given her. "Yes, I'll want a renewal. When are you leaving, Nate?"

"Tomorrow morning. Will you drive this shiny new car over to Gold Run tomorrow, lunch with me there and see me off on my journey?"

She shook her raven head. "No, No, I think not. Partings are little deaths—and we start our calf-branding tomorrow. There are only two men on the payroll who can rope a calf by the hind legs and drag him to the fire. The others are Indians—neck-ropers; so I have to take a hand at the branding corral myself. Got to get the branding done quickly."

His face brightened. "If you'll give me a horse and a riata I'll stay over a few days and help you. It's so long since I've worked in a branding corral and I ought to keep my hand in."

They sat down on the running board of Lorry's new car and chatted until Mrs. Tenney called them in to dinner, served them and discreetly retired to the kitchen. For a long time Lorry was silent, then, with the impetuosity of her nature, suddenly she returned to the subject nearest her heart.

Investigating Effect That Beaver Dams Have on Streams Where the Trout Lives

That ingenious little engineer, the beaver, is due for a spanking at the hands of scientists who have been given the job of determining what effect, if any, its dam building operations have on trout fishing.

Preliminary examinations by the scientists tend toward condemnation of beavers' presence on trout streams if good fishing is to be maintained, and the acceptance of this only means that a hundred thousand fishermen will be clamoring for beaver hides, says a writer in the Detroit News.

So far the investigators have found that a trout won't jump over a beaver dam that obstructs its free passage to the headwaters for spawning purposes, but that it will drop over going down stream. So this doesn't let the female trout get back to its spawning beds once it passes a dam, and that is bad for the natural reproduction of trout. It has been discovered also that the backwaters of a beaver dam create good fishing for two or three years, and then the sport disappears and the trout taken from such still waters are generally unfit to eat, having a muddy flavor.

"Beaver dams," the report says, "have a very definite influence on the chemical conditions of the water in a stream and frequently cause stagnation, and trout taken from such water could not be eaten. All of the streams surveyed so far possessed a large amount of fermenting and decaying vegetation."

If future findings are along the same line, the beaver will join the ranks of the otter, Great Blue heron, water snake and fish duck as enemies to trout fishing. And this means that trout fishermen will not rest content until some attempt is made to remove them from the best trout streams.

"ETIQUETTE," "THE BLUE BOOK OF SOCIAL USAGE," ETC.

PROPRIETIES

DEAR Mrs. Post: What do you think of a lined envelope in stationery used by men? It seems impossible to find an unlined envelope, which does not permit the writing to show through.

Answer: They are perhaps not objectionable, if plain, but they are really more suitable for women. If you do not write on the back page the ink can't show through!

My dear Mrs. Post: I know a young man (and his family) very well. This person has asked me to go as his guest to the World's fair in Chicago with him and his twenty-two-year-old sister. Is his sister a sufficient chaperon to keep people from talking about us?

Answer: You cannot properly let him pay your railway fare and your hotel bill. Aside from this, you might perfectly well go to Chicago when they go, and of course go to see the fair with them and take as many meals with them and go to wherever places of amusement they invite you to.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been taking a girl out for the greater part of two years. We always have to take her mother or sister (or both) with us, no matter whether it is to the movies or for a ride in my car—and I might add at my expense. I have complained to the girl and she says if I like her as much as I pretend, I won't mind. What, if anything, is there left for me to do?

Answer: Thirty years ago her behavior would have been conventional. Today it is so unreasonable as to suggest that she likes your car and the movies more than she does you. In your place, I would tell her frankly that one man, two girls and an older woman is not your idea of a pleasant party. If she still insists on including her whole family, I would transfer my attentions to another girl.

Dear Mrs. Post: I received a postcard from a friend who is away on her vacation. The card has no salutation and close, and I felt hurt about this coldness, until some one told me that none were intended for postcards. Is this true?

Answer: Cards, like telegrams, are public messages. Therefore, they never have a beginning, nor do they have more than the most abbreviated signature possible at the close.

WHO IS A "LADY"?

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is the word "lady" more correct than "woman" when telling some one that "there is a (blank) calling on the telephone?" The word doesn't seem to have any real significance any longer if I am to judge by the many females who are called "lady" and who don't know any more about following "the code of a lady (or gentleman)" than I know about building skyscrapers, when my business is to design draperies for their many windows. Is any woman a "lady" nowadays?

Answer: The term, which once denoted a person of breeding and cultivation, long ago deteriorated into meaning nothing more than a female of respectable appearance. Consequently those who have clearest right to the title speak of themselves and their friends as women. One should, however, always say "a lady on the telephone." You would also say, "I am making curtains for a lady in Chicago."

Dear Mrs. Post: Our neighbors are very inconsiderate. My husband works every evening until eleven o'clock and would enjoy sleeping until eight o'clock next morning. But it is next to impossible to get any sleep after six o'clock because their small children are not disciplined at all, and the mother never tells them to be quiet, or keeps them from climbing the fence into our yard. In fact, she herself slams doors and yells. Isn't there anything we can do to mend their habits and yet keep the neighborhood in an amiable state? We can't move, so don't advise that.

Answer: When neighbors are inconsiderate nothing can be done except to call on the board of health (or whatever local official deals with such matters). I have a friend who owns a New York apartment, the sale of which in this day is impossible. Overhead live two boys whose only diversions seem to be jumping contests and chopstick piano duets. The misery of my friend, who is an invalid, can hardly be exaggerated. In this case each note of protest brings a note of apology from the mother or the father, and then the noise goes on unabated. Perhaps a visit from a representative of the board of health might be effective—depending, of course, upon the efficiency of this particular representative.

Animal Like Duck

The platypus, or the duckbill, of Australia, is an animal even though it has a bill like a duck and lays eggs to hatch its young. It possesses fur and not feathers and cannot fly and can hardly run. Its normal body temperature is lower than any other warm-blooded animal. It is a real freak and belongs to the past ages.

Wallpaper Great Aid in "Remaking" Rooms

Wallpaper is a great aid for barn-like rooms with high ceilings. Here's one recipe for "bringing the ceiling down" and making the total area of the room seem less. Choose a paper having a design in which horizontal lines or patterns predominate and do not cover the walls from the baseboard to the ceiling, but to a point about two feet below the ceiling. Use your molding here, or a wallpaper border.

Then, extend the ceiling paper down to meet the side walls. Thus, you will appear to lower the ceiling. Also, your eyes will follow the horizontal lines in the paper and the room will seem less "tall" to you.

On the other hand, if you are papering a small room with a low ceiling, choose a wallpaper having vertical stripes or patterns to carry the eye up and to add to the apparent height of the walls. And do not "drop" the ceiling, of course.

The best papers for small rooms are those having tiny patterns in light colors. Also, a scenic design will do a lot for the room, lending depth because of its perspective.

When you feel inclined to be a bit hopeless about the architectural drawbacks of your home—don't! Wallpaper can correct myriads of faults if you will give it a chance.—Chicago Tribune.

Fable

When motor cars were not as plentiful as now, a car of fishermen drove through the thinly populated backwoods section where there were no telephones and no newspapers; the radio had not been invented. The party was inching along a lonely rough road and had driven for miles without seeing a soul when they saw a man plowing in the field with a single shovel and his wife hitched to the plow. They stopped and asked their way and the wind blow a newspaper out of the car and in front of the woman. She got scared and ran away and tore up the plow, and it took the man an hour to fix the harness and get to work again.—Independence Examiner.

Mercolized Wax

Keeps Skin Young

Absorb blemishes and discolorations using Mercolized Wax daily as directed. Invisible particles of aged skin are freed and all defects such as blackheads, tan, freckles and large pores disappear. Skin is then beautifully clear, velvety and so soft—face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out your hidden beauty. At all leading druggists.

Powdered Saxolite

Reduces wrinkles and other age-signs. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxolite in half-pint witch hazel and use daily as face lotion.

Eczema on Hands Skin Peeled Off in Pieces

Cuticura Healed

"I was troubled with eczema on my hands for ever so long. I could not put my hands in much water because after I got through I could just peel the skin off in pieces. It would form like a rash and bothered me terribly, burning and itching. My hands were sights and I was ashamed.

"I tried a lot of different remedies that did not help. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped a lot. I bought more and now my hands are completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. S. Hammond, 10 Pleasant St., Hollis-ton, Mass., Aug. 16, 1933.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. One sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. R, Malden, Mass."—Adv.

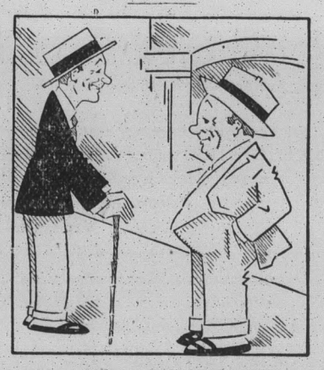
EXTRAVAGANCE

"It must cost a lot to have your wife spend the summer at the seashore."

"I should say it does. Since she's been away I have lost about twenty-five dollar a night at the club."

LIKE MANY OTHERS



"Where would you advise me to go for my vacation?"

"Why not try Shoreville?"

"Can I have a good time there?"

"Yes, if you take it with you."

SOFT, SOFTER

"I hear that DeSapp has run through his inheritance and is looking for a job."

"He won't have as soft a time as he has had."

"Oh, I don't know, he'll have a soft time so long as he doesn't lose his head."

HOLING-IN

"When do you have setting-up drill?"

"Don't have setting-up drill any more. Modern tactics consist mainly of flattering yourself and burrowing."

WIGGLE, JIGGLE

"How did Blanche announce her engagement to the family?"

"Just wiggled the finger that had the diamond ring on it."

A Difference

"Did you show that account to Hard-up again today?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you tell him that it had been on the slate long enough and I'd like to rub it out?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did he say?"

"He said it looked as if you were trying to rub it in."

On the Funny Side

WOW!

Hub—Where's that new dress you bought? I haven't seen you wearing it yet.

Wife—Huh! I saw our neighbor, Mrs. DeSnob, wearing one just like it, so I gave it to the next door laundress and made her wear it while hanging up the clothes so the snooty thing could see her with it on.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Not Her Worry

"But," said the friend who had dropped in from out of town, "won't your wife be sore at you for bringing me home to dinner without letting her know in advance?"

"Heck, no!" he replied, "I always pick up the makings for dinner at the delicatessen on the way home, and the kids and I get it on the table before she blows in from the bridge club."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Stop That Squeak

"Wilfred! Wilfred!" whispered Mrs. Jones, excitedly, "There's a mouse in the bedroom."

Wilfred sat up in bed and looked sleepily at his wife. "Well, what about it?" he groaned.

"I can hear it squeaking," she said.

"Well, d'yu want me to get out and oil it, or something?" he snapped. —Exchange.

Generosity

"Is your boy Josh going back to college?"

"I'm not sure," answered Farmer Corntossel. "Josh seems to think that if a college professor knows anything worth tellin' he'll rush to the radio and give it to you free."

Two Sides

"There are two sides to every argument."

"That's true," said Senator Sorghum. "But an argument is like a coat. There's a wrong side and a right side."—Washington Star.

Noisy With It

Pete—You had soup for dinner today.

Bill—Who told you?

Pete—Nobody; I was passing your house while the family was at work on it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PATTERN SUITED TO FROCKS OF VARIOUS TYPES AND FABRICS

PATTERN 1782

You'll soon be needing one of these completely new morning dresses, as warm days are well on the way. The design of this little frock is so adaptable to ideas of your own, you can use the same pattern to make several different dresses. Make it all of a printed wash silk or of solid-colored pale blue, green or rose cotton fabric. Or you can make the wing-like sleeve effect of a harmonizing or contrasting material—and you'll have still another new and very exciting dress. Really as lovely for afternoons as for mornings, and expresses gaiety in no small way!

Pattern 1782 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

AWAITING DECISION

Mrs. W. H. writes: "Bobby was attending summer school at St. Monica and was dawdling along in that direction one morning when a friend of his mother came along.

"'Which is it today?' she asked. 'Is it school or fishing?'

"'I'm not sure,' hesitated Bobby. 'I'm just fighting with my conscience.'"—Boston Transcript.

The Stolen Rope

"Have you a copy of 'The Stolen Rope'?" inquired a visitor to a music seller.

"I am afraid I don't know of such a song."

"Why, it goes like this:" And the customer hummed the tune.

"Why, you mean 'The Lost Chord!'" said the assistant.

"Ah, that's it!"—Toronto Globe.

A Perfect Gentleman

"What's your idea of a gentleman farmer?"

"He's a person," answered Farmer Corntossel, "who is so well fixed that he can waste profanity on a golf ball instead of on a mule."

Too Busy

"Ever study political economy?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "If the people out my way caught me sitting down to read a lot o' books they'd think I was neglecting my job."

A Dreamer

"What is a debtor, pa?"

"A man who owes money."

"And what is a creditor?"

"The man who thinks he's going to get it."—Boston Transcript.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

Rev. W. S. Dunn will occupy the pulpit in the morning of worship His sermon theme will be "The Pathway to Peace."

At 6:30 the young people's meeting will be led by James Keck. This is a happy time for the young folks, and visitors at the beach are welcome

The song service at 7:30 p. m. will be led by the pastor, who will speak on the subject "Eternal Light for an Age of Night."

You are cordially invited to these services.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Communion Services will be conducted on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Sacrament." Christ Jesus' words, "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world," constitute the Golden Text.

These verses from Revelation are included in the Lesson-Sermon: "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. . . . Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. . . . I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright morning star."

One of the passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "Jesus established his church and maintained his mission on a spiritual foundation of Christ-healing. He taught his followers that his religion had a divine Principle, which would cast out error and heal both the sick and the sinning."

WHAT ADVERTISING DOES

Talks by Old Timers

James Murphy, Old Town
(Champion of Barbecue Events)

Talking about the long time it takes to barbecue a whole beef and short working hours. A friend in heaven talking to an acquaintance in hell.

The man in heaven—How long you boys working down there under NIRA?

The man in h———Oh we're only working two hours a day. How long you working up there?

The man above—Goodness, we keep busy 20 hours a day.

The man below—You don't say, that must be a busy place.

The man in heaven—Well, not so much to do but there are so few here to do it.

Business People Pleased With Barbecue Crowd

The success of last Saturday's celebration at Ocean Beach was gratifying to those taking part as well as the business men who appreciated the crowd. Most all of these were warm in their praise for the sponsors of the event. One nearby restaurant man stated that even though a barbecue was served he had the best business of any day in the last three years. Another said he sold out early and had to close his place of business about two hours ahead of the regular schedule.

One business man, who has been here ten or twelve years, stated Saturday showed the best receipts since he located in Ocean Beach.

Several business people were heard to say that Saturday's barbecue brought more people here than they had seen any time in the past ten years.

While not every business benefited from the crowd here Saturday, yet we are sure Ocean Beach as a whole received a great deal of favorable publicity and gained experience upon which an annual celebration can be built to large proportions.

When we have anything at the beach, let's all be for it, if you can see no direct benefit we are sure that indirectly whatever helps one helps all.

TRANSAMERICA CORPORATION TO PAY DIVIDEND JULY 31

Directors of Transamerica Corporation today placed the company's capital stock on an annual dividend basis of 25 cents a share with the declaration of a dividend of 12½ cents payable July 31 to stock of record July 12. The same amount was paid on January 31.

The aggregate amount of the disbursement, which will be paid to holders of 23,682,231 outstanding shares is $2, 960, 279, and brings the total amount of dividends declared to date in 1934 to $5,920,519. California will receive the maximum benefit from this increase in purchasing power, as approximately 80 percent of the total dividend accrues to residents of this state.

In announcing the July dividend, L. M. Giannini, chairman of Transamerica's Executive Committee, said "The current disbursement brings the total amount of dividends to stockholders of Transamerica Corporation and its predecessor to more than $113,000,000.

"While no definite figures on earnings for the half year period can be compiled at this date, recent estimates have established the fact that consolidated earnings of Transamerica Corporation and subsidiaries for the past six months have covered the dividend for the period by a substantial margin. The corporation continued to show progress during the past half-year with marked gains in profits over the corresponding period of 1933."

THE KING

(By Will Lawler in the American Progress)

I am King Mammon, God of Gold.
Destiny of the World I hold.
Fondling pawns human, in my hand,
Moulding them slaves to my command.
Into patterns to suit my need,
To serve their master, God of Greed.
All puppets who, within Gold's spell
Do my bidding and do it well—
Forgetting honor, oaths and God,
When from Mammon they get the nod.
I whisper to them: 'You're my friends.'
Of course they are, they serve my ends.
